Purpose

This policy defines additional requirements for employees who intend to work internationally or relocate temporarily.

Temporary International Work

Employees requesting international work must obtain approval before beginning work from the destination country. The request must include the destination country, dates, reason for travel, and confirmation from the employee's manager.

Extended International Work

International work lasting more than 90 consecutive calendar days is considered extended international work. Extended international work requires review by Human Resources and Compliance.

Permanent Relocation

Permanent relocation is not automatically authorized through the remote work process. Employees seeking permanent relocation must use the company's relocation process and receive separate approval.

Tax and Legal Review

Approval for international work does not by itself confirm that all tax, immigration, employment, or regulatory requirements have been satisfied. Employees must complete any required compliance review before beginning international work.

Effective Date

This policy became effective on February 1, 2026.
